

Now Crumple This Paper

Feel Free To Uncrumple This Paper At Any Time

Game Design by Taylor LaBresh

Layout by Jason Baesel

Read out loud:

We Are In Line At Gaming Convention: A Convention For Gaming. We are playing a game that has been played for millions of years. We are playing this game because we are waiting in line to check in at Gaming Convention: A Convention For Gaming. Some of us have died in line. Others have always been in line since before lines existed, waiting eternally. Additional others only just now have entered the line.

This is what is happening at this moment: we are playing this game but have not been told the rules, everyone knows this game except for those who do not. If you do not know the rules, un-crumple this paper and read the top-most rule. That rule applies to our situation now and forever into the future. Make a note of what that rule is now used for and either cross it off, make a note next to it, or rip it out of this sheet. It is no longer the top-most rule. Sometimes the rules make sense & help us understand how the game works. Other times the rules are confusing and we have to interpret them ourselves, or make clever interpretations. This game is about to begin. Now Crumple This Paper and hand it down to the next person in line.

The first person to Uncrumple This Paper is now the Master of Ceremonies and is now in charge of leading the story. Everyone else is playing a character in the Master of Ceremonies' story. Who is your character? Now Crumple This Paper.

Hold hands with someone and look into their eyes until you agree on something. Your agreement takes on a physical form. Tell the Master of Ceremonies if the agreement manifestation is there to help or to hurt. Now Crumple This Paper.

One of us is obviously some sort of dinosaur. Making a dinosaur noise solves whatever problem you had that required you to Uncrumple This Paper. Explain who the dinosaur is and why they're waiting to get into Gaming Convention: A Convention For Gaming. Now Crumple This Paper.

If it gets too emotional, change scenes entirely, but lock pinky fingers with the person with whom you were previously emotional. Now Crumple This Paper.

Immediately Crumple This Paper then Uncrumple This Paper. Feel Free To Crumple & Uncrumple This Paper At Any Time. How weird does it sound to say Crumple and Uncrumple right now?

You have just died in order to resolve whatever made you Uncrumple This Paper. Explain your new Unresolved Business & declare who you are haunting. What does your ectoplasm feel like? Now Crumple This Paper.

A light touch on the forearm. What does it mean? Nice. Now Crumple This Paper.

Stop reading the rules out loud. Come up with a rule on your own. It requires some sort of physical gesture. Do that gesture right now. Get angry when the others mimic you. Now Crumple This Paper.

CR 5 Pit Trap: DC 17 Reflex to avoid. 2D6 falling damage +1d10 spike damage. The trap is lonely and wants to be loved. It weeps openly when it realizes you're heading further into the dungeon. How does your party feel about that? Now Crumple This Paper.

Compliment yourself. Harder. Yeah, you rock. I love it. I don't know if it solves your problem but a little self-love never hurt nobody. Compliment someone else for good measure. Now Crumple This Paper, you fabulous creature.

Repeat as needed.